

TUESDAY EVENING, MAR. 1, 1904.

SEVERAL years ago we heard of schemes concerning benevolent assimilation when the United States started on its conquest of the Phillippine Islands. Many visionaries ran wild with the notion that all that the government need do was to pull down the Spanish flag and hoist the Stars and Strips and a millennium on a nos, who were at the time endeavoring to throw off the Spanish yoke, were, of course, not disposed to exchange the shackles of one country for those of another, and while the Spaniards were evacuating the islands the natives found themselves confronted by other foreigners. The Filipinos, very naturally, took issue with the invaders and there has been more or less bloodshed and dissatisfaction ever since. As was stated yesterday, General Wood in a dispatch from Manila announces the practical extermination of Hassan's army. His original force of 3,000 has now been reduced to 15, the others having been killed. The general says "the island is now under control of the American authorities, and influential Moros are aiding in the pursuit of the outlaws." The benevolent assimilation dreamed of by deluded people seems to have ended practically in bloody extermination, and the natives who have had the audacity to resist the invaders are termed "outlaws" by the American general.

BEFORE the Presbyterian Social Union of Philadelphia at its fifteenth annual dinner last evening Secretary of War and former Governor of the Philippines, W. H. Taft, in an address said : "For the great mass of Filipinos our present hope of making them good and useful citizens is first to make them good Catholics.' This was the very quintessence of irony, for every man at the dinner had read in the evening papers that out of a force of 3,000 Filipinos Governor Wood had just killed all but fitteen of the unfortunate natives. The administration seems to act on the principle that the only good Filipinos are dead Filipinos, and if this thing is kept up much longer there will be none of them left to be made either good Catholics or good and useful citizens. If it is General Wood's intention to continue killing these poor unfortunate natives until he is made a major general, for their sakes his appointment had better be confirmed at once.

THE District of Columbia Commis sioners yesterday asked Congress to appropriate immediately $5,000 to be devoted to clearing the Potomac river of ice. They point out in their communication that the $5,000 appropriated for this purpose in the middle of January is exhausted, and that the ice above the Aqueduct bridge is as threatening as ever to life and property along the river front. This is, of course, but another scheme to get money from the public treasury for the benefit of certain boatowners. There has not been a minute this year when there was danger from ice to life or property at Washington, and the $5,000 appropriated had much better been given to the poor than used to break ice, which was gradually being melted and carried away. Another appropriation would be a useless waste of the people's money.

THERE is not a public interest involved in the proposition to give American ship owners a monopoly of the Philippine business, except on the theory that it is a public interest to enable some Americans to make more money than they would otherwise. If, says the Philadelphia Record, the money were to be made out of foreigners, this proposition might be sustained, but much of the money that Americans would make would be taken from other Americans. A large part of the time of Congress and its committees is taken up in trying to decide how far to allow one set of Americans to prey upon some other set. That has come to be regarded as the chief function of the government. So far as public interests are affected-the interests of the government or of the people as a whole-they are on the side of an open field and natural competition.

IT is remembered that some years since Martin Irons was a prominent leader in the labor world, but he went wrong, lost caste with those who had advanced him and finally died in a poor house. More recently Sam Parks, of New York, who by his arbitrary methods was a terror to both employe and employer, was convicted of bribery and of robbing his fellow workmen and was sent to the penitentiary. These men were admittedly dishonest, but no such charge was ever made against John Mitchell; still at a meeting of the labor lyceum in Buffalo yesterday he was branded a faker and traitor. Mr. Mitchell is the head of probably the largest organization in the world, and it is to be hoped that the charges are without

Towards the evening Franke's company broke through the enemy's formation and the natives retired. Their strength and the number of their losses are not known. One German officer was killed and four officers, among them Baron Schoenau Wehr, and four men were wounded.

CONGRESSIONAL

The architectural changes made in the White House were the subject of a large share of yesterday's discussion in the Senate, and they were generally criti-cised as falling far short of the improvements which should have been secured purpose. The discussion arose in connection with the consideration of the bill providing for the erection of a building for the joint use of the Departments of State, Justice, and Com merce and Labor. That bill was the special order of the day, and its consideration was not concluded.

Damage by Flood.

Toledo, O., March 1.-Flood conditions on the Maumee are again critical. The heavy gorge at Waterville went out this morning, carrying away the bridge. The ice and water then piled up against the bridge connecting Maumee and Perrysburg, which seems doomed to go out. The village of Waterville is submerged with water flowing from the river on one side and the Miami and Erie canal on the other. Serious condi tions are reported in other places.

The British Navy.

In introducing the naval estimates in the House of Commons yesterday Ernest G. Prettyman, Secretary of the Admiralty, justified the increase in the estim ates on the ground that the two-power standard must be maintained. The Russian battleship programme, as well as the programme of the other friendly naval powers had been taken into consideration in framing the estimates. Secretary Prettyman, referring to the great improvement in shooting in the British navy, instanced the British armored cruiser Leviathan, which, steaming at twelve knots, fired ten rounds from her 9-2-inch guns in two minutes, and hit a fourteen by twen-ty foot target ten times at a range of two thousand yards. In discussing further the two-power standard, the Secretary said that Russia and France together had built or were building sixty-four first and second class battleships, and France and horse. McCarty drew his revolver and Germany combined were building or had built sixty-one battleships, while the horse onto Marklein's body and buried its teeth in his breast, and shoulders, British total was sixty-three battleships. here are awaiting with interest news from Port Arthur and the result of the attack that will be made today or tomorrow The fact that the three cruisers, the Novik, the Askold and the Bayan have been standing the brunt of the intermittent Japanese sea attacks for the past few days means one of two things—either the ones left in fighting condition, or else the attempt on the part of the Japanese to block the entrance to the harbor on Feb. 24th, was successful to the degree that no larger vessels than the three cruisers can come out and fight. It may be if a report received by the Daily Telegraph this morning is true, that the Russians have not even these three vessel to oppo the Japanese which would simplify the attack on the port for the Japanese to an appreciable degree. This report to the Telegraph, which comes from Yin Kow, says that in an attack on the harbor yes terday by fifteen Japanese warships the Bayan, Askold and Novik were all badly damaged and the battleship Retvizan which is stranded on the left side of the the entrance, was further damaged. The Russian land position, if re-ports are to be credited, is serious. Of course they do. It is their way of learning and it is your duty to answer. You may need a die tionary to aid you. It won't an swer every question, but there are thousands to which it will give you true, clear and definite answers. not about words only, but about things, the sun, machinery, men, places, stories and the like. Then, too, the children can find their own answers. Some of our greatest men have ascribed their power to study of the dictionary. Of course you want the best die tionary. The most critical prefer the New and Enlarged Edition of

WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY.
